They have enough on their minds already. Christmas is right around the corner, business is brisk, and their little antiques district of Old Towne is being plagued with petty thievery and vandalism. Murder is just not in the game plan.

When Daisy and Rose start asking questions things get hairier. Someone begins stalking them. Daisy receives threatening letters and is brutally attacked.

Suddenly, they're on the trail of a missing priceless diamond and it looks like the man Daisy is dating will become the next victim. With the help of their eccentric mother, Angela, and their hormonally-exuberant dog, Malcolm, they follow the clues to catch a killer.

The Hannibal Jones mystery series

Hannibal Jones is a Washington DC-based, African American private detective. This series is a fresh take on the classic hard boiled private eye, updated into the 21st Century and given an urban spin. Hannibal Jones is a professional problem solver with an obsessive dedication to finding the truth. His cases are twisting, complex mysteries, but with plenty of action.

He describes his job this way:

"I don't think of myself as a detective, although I do have a private investigator's license. I'm not a bodyguard, although I have been known to protect people from danger. I'm not a strong-arm man, but I do have to fight on the job. Like my card says, I'm a troubleshooter. I help people out of tight spots."
